

Let Me Sow Love

Words and Music by Kyle Hancharick and Douglas Q. Hutchings

So many faces, but none the same
So many people just playing this game
One big puzzle; we're all a piece
Where even the greatest, become the least
And even the broken
Get a seat of honor
At the feast

I'm having a good time but I'm trying to find Something worth giving my life
I fly but I fall, try to swim but I drown
But where there's love, you will be found
Though I'm full of doubt and fear
You can chase it out

Oh let me sow the love that you put in me
Make me an instrument of your joy and your peace
Where there is doubt, let me bring faith
You're bringing light to our darkest days
Let me bring hope where there's despair
Where there's love, you will be there

So, God use me
For your glory
Oh hear my prayer

Oh let me sow the love that you put in me
Make me an instrument of your joy and your peace